

DGS Library May 2015

Since the official launch by Niall MacMonagle last December, after the assembling by First Formers of the additional sofas from the Parent Teacher Association,

new titles have been scanned,
labelled and covered,

students have written recommendations

and some terrific donations have arrived.

Less well known is the amount of books stored in Hanbridge House. These boxes contain titles for whom there isn't space, yet which ought to be available for reference. Cataloguing these books is the next task.

Ms Rudoll and Ms Bartule supervise the library at lunch-times and after school, assisted by Fifth Form Duty Assistants Conor Brady, Aidan Hopkins and Rian Fox-Hughes. (Absent: Lucy MacManus and Samson Tewogbade)

Aaron van Kan and Leya Ramsay, TY librarians, took on the much-postponed task of finding an area to display twenty years' worth of sports photos.

They identified three wall-spaces, then repaired and cleaned frames, also making a digital copy of each photo.

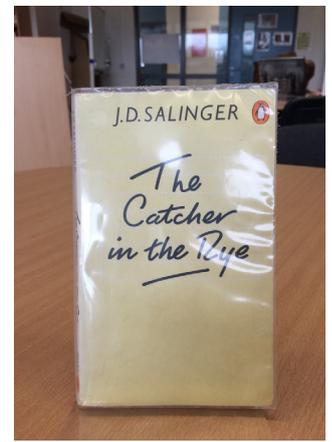

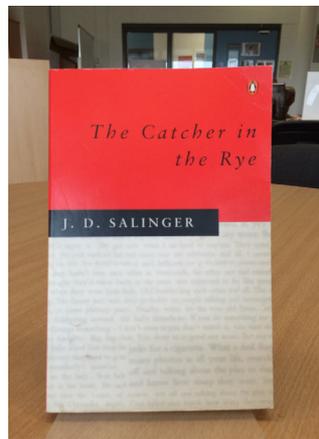

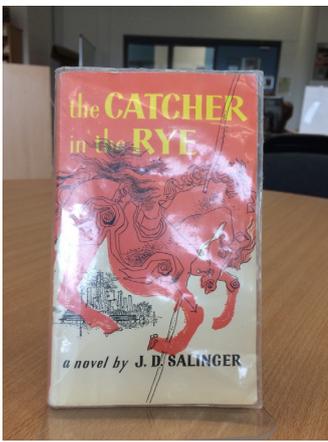

Incoming students make connections.

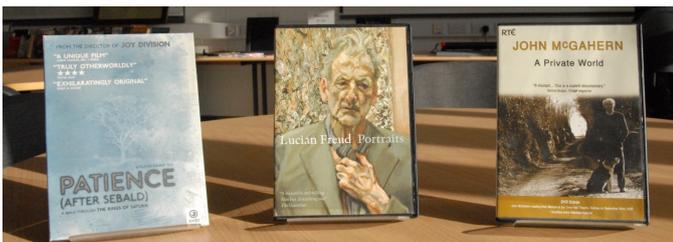

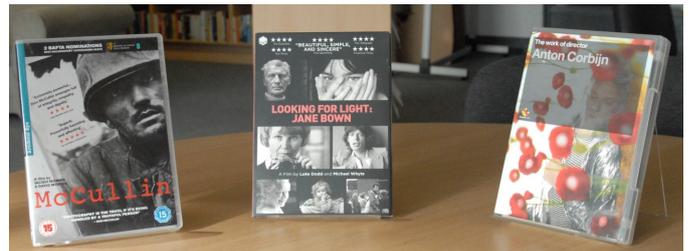

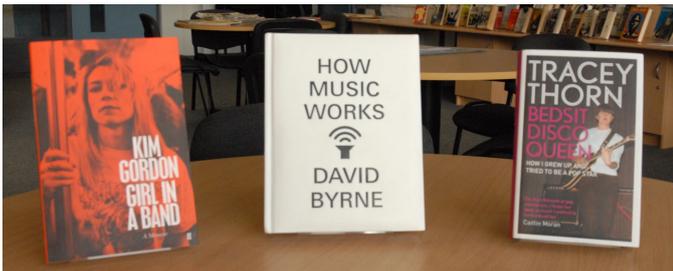

After painstaking measurements, the photos were mounted by caretaker Gerry Ronan upstairs in Harper Building and Fynamore Hall, where past-pupils (Kevin Gallagher and Andrew Boylan) can see their younger selves.

Which edition of Salinger's classic would you say is more likely to catch the eye? This was the kind of decision student librarians made.

Music biographies are well represented, as are documentaries on the arts.

The year ended with displays of student photography, featuring Sports Day and the TY Triathlon.
